Fred Bear Bags Tiger

"The rumpus she was making now left no doubt as to where she was. Nobody ever goes into thick brush like that to a tiger in that state of mind. They are savage and would stop at nothing when worked into a frenzy. A tiger this size could do in the biggest brownie or grizzly in about half a minute or so."

"After what seemed much longer than it really was, the terrible roaring stopped. Meanwhile the hunters had stopped. Would not advance. Much talking now between Bundi and the hunters in native tongue. I did not know it at the time and did not see him, but Bundi sent his top tracker into the brush with a big double. He found my cat dead. Word was flashed to the hunters that the big beast was dead."

In addition to the exciting tiger hunt, Fred and the photographer spent several days in Turkey where fine photographs were obtained of some of the most ancient archery items in the world which are on display in museums at Istanbul. Jeweled quivers and golden bows made by Sultans were among the things photographed. One quiver was valued at $100,000. The pair also investigated and inspected the ancient shooting grounds of the Turks known as "Ox Mayden". Here were found markers showing the long distance arrows were shot long ago. Also many monuments going to ruin dot the area.

The trophy tiger is now in New York City where it is being mounted by the top taxidermist in the country. The mounting job will be a special one and the tiger will be on display at the Trophy Room at the Bear Archery Co. plant at a later date. It will probably be sometime next winter before it is received here and put on display.

Letters To The Editor

Editor's Note—The following letter was recently received by Mrs. Clyde Peterson of Houghton Lake and former Grayling resident, concerning her son, Bill Heath, a 1960 Grayling High graduate.

May 16, 1963

Mrs. Nadine Peterson
R. F. D. No. 1
Grayling, Michigan

My dear Mrs. Peterson:

As you probably know, your son, William, has been advanced to Personnelman Third Class as a result of the service-wide competitive examinations held during the month of February 1963. This letter is to tender my personal congratulations to you for the part you played in this advancement.

We in the Navy know what an unusual life we lead, and how especially trying it is on those we love. We are at sea so very often, and when we are in port, our duties make it necessary for us to work many extra-hours. And yet, in these days of "Cold War" our tasks are more important than ever. The Navy is, and always will be, the Nation's first line of defense. To maintain our Services in a ready state takes the hard work of many loyal men like your son. His advancement has made the Navy that much more ready to perform its job at a moment's notice.

I know that his advancement could not have come about unless he had a patient and understanding parent supporting him in his ambitions. So, to you must go the small part of the credit. By your son's chosen career you have stood with him and given him the support that all of us must have. The officers and men of PRINCETON join me in congratulating you on the part you have played in contributing to your son's success.

You have every right to be as proud of him as I am pleased to have him in my command.

Sincerely yours,

R. H. Smith

Local queens throughout Michigan competed for the title during the educational conference which is held annually.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Mr. Stroger:

As you probably know, I have been chosen to represent Grayling as an exchange student to Germany. Since the exchange program has been a community project in Grayling, I thought you might like to know what has been done thus far in preparation for the trip.

After I was selected from the Grayling group I sent in my application to the Youth For Understanding Teen-Age Exchange Program in Ann Arbor. They sent back the necessary forms etc., for me to fill out. Then I applied for my passport and I received my shots.

My family and I also went to two meetings. The first was an area meeting in Manistee, where area students learned the "do's and don'ts" of the trip. Then we went to the picnic-potluck in Ann Arbor where all the students and their families met. Here we got our special suitcases and attended a meeting where we heard speeches by foreign counselors and by the director, Mrs. Anderson. It may be noted that at the meeting we learned that out of 384 students, 163 are going to Germany.

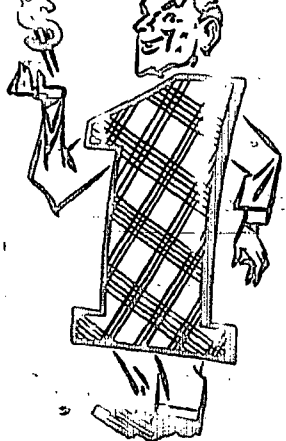

Then, last week I received a letter from Torgren Day, my German brother, who said I would be staying with his family in Treysa, a town of 10,000 inhabitants, in West Germany. I also got a letter from the council saying my flight date would be on June 14th.

So far this has been an extremely wonderful experience for me, and I'm sure the rest of it will be too. I am very grateful for the fact that I'm one of the few students being sent by his community. Therefore, I would like to express my heartfelt thanks to everyone who contributed to, or had anything to do with the program. I know many people have worked very hard and I am deeply indebted to them.

In closing, I would like to say that I will try to do my best in representing Grayling and I will try to be a good example of American life. If anyone has any advice or something of that nature to offer, I would greatly appreciate it. Thank you again.

Sincerely,

Bill Joseph

Limit Spending . . . Now!

As everyone but a hermit in the hills must know, the proposed federal budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will approach the $100 billion mark. A vast deficit is a certainty — varying, according to assorted estimates, from $8 billion to as much as $20 billion. And the national debt will soar past $300 billion.

These are figures which are totally incomprehensible to the average human mind. Yet — as a feature article by Charles Stevenson in the May issue of the Reader's Digest makes a clear — even they don't tell the whole story. For the budget — for all of its 1600 pages of complex words and figures — does not include all of the federal spending.

As for President Kennedy's budget, Mr. Stevenson writes: "No other President in history has dared to propose such spending, even in war, and consternation has been spreading ever since he tossed this program to Congress." And no less a figure than Representative Cannon, Democratic House Appropriations Committee chairman, was shocked, saying, "I've never seen a budget like this in all my 40 years in Congress, nor has anyone else." Incredible. Inviting disaster. Staggering!

It is a sobering fact, as Mr. Stevenson reports, that the interest alone on the national debt is the largest single item of government expenditure except for defense. It comes to $10 billion a year — which is the equivalent of all the income taxes paid by the 41 million taxpayers with incomes running up to the $6,000 level.

The fact that the budget, incredible as it is, does not accurately reflect the scope of federal spending, is due to any illegal chicanery. It is due in large part to what is known as backdoor spending — that is, spending which, by reason of one law or another is not reflected either in whole or in part in the budget figures. For example, Mr. Stevenson says that the Department of Agriculture is spending more this year than last, while the budget shows it spending substantially less. The reason for this is that the department "hopes to offset the increases by selling off vast amounts of its surplus cotton." Such hopes, obviously, are just that and nothing more — few will be surprised if they are not realized.

Mr. Stevenson lists numbers of other examples of backdoor spending of one kind or another. They include, according to him, the Export-Import Bank; the Rural Electrification Administration; the Housing and Home Finance Agency; and the Commodity Credit Corporation. He then says that such agencies as these "will

28 Locally Pass Up Pensions Due Them

(Special to the Avalanche)

New York — A number of Crawford County residents will soon be getting windfalls in the form of Government pension checks.

These payments, unsought and unexpected, represent benefits due them under the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance system. They are entitled to them because of their contributions, over the years to the OASI trust fund.

Then why are they not receiving them? Simply because they did not apply for them.

Why did they not apply for them? Because they did not realize they were entitled to them.

The OASI officials themselves were startled to discover recently that there are more than 1,000,000 people in the United States who are eligible for pensions but are not getting them.

When it became apparent that there were more of them than had been realized, they gave their giant computers the task of finding out just how many. An avalanche of names poured out of the machines.

For every 17 people or so who are receiving monthly pension checks, there is an additional one, it develops, who should be but is not.

In Crawford County, there are an estimate 28 of these non-collecting eligibles.

They could be receiving anywhere from $40 a month, which is the minimum amount paid, to the present of $254 a month.

The average old-age benefit, according to the latest OASI figures, is $76.18.

On the basis of this average, the 28 local beneficiaries who are on the missing list are passing up payments aggregating about $2,133 every month, or $25,590 a year.

Some spot-checking on the part of the Government reveals that there are many reasons to explain the failure of qualified people to apply for their pensions.

Most of them didn't think they were eligible. This was frequently so in the case of men and women who continued working beyond age 65.

Others thought they didn't have enough working quarters to qualify. They were unaware of changes in the rules that reduced the number of quarters needed.

A large number of others had the false notion that a person had to be needy to be entitled to Social Security pensions.

Plan Broadened Use Of Highway Funds For Safety

SAFETY FIRST-SECOND

An apparent move to broaden the use of presently earmarked highway funds has been indicated early by Gov. George Romney.

Speaking to a traffic safety group in Lansing before the approval of the new Constitution was even verified by the Board of State Canvassers, Romney called for a study to determine the feasibility of using highway funds to promote traffic safety.

Romney's theory was that since today's roads are designed to encourage safety, the same funds used to build them should also be available to preach the subject and conduct research on it. His specific reference was to possible use of the funds to re-establish a Traffic Safety center similar to the one in operation at Michigan State University until last year, when it was cut out of the state budget.

Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie reacted quickly at Romney's suggestion. Mackie said he believes it would be "a serious mistake" for the State Legislature to divert highway funds to another agency. Under the new Constitution, however, the earmarking of these funds will end.

The commissioner's fear is that, "When they make the first diversion to a quasi-highway agency, the second one will become that much easier."

This fear is not altogether unjustified, it would appear. There have been some discussions among legislators already that a traffic safety center, driver education, highway police patrols and all other highway-related state programs should be financed by road funds.

While Mackie's complaint about possible "traps on highway funds" was heard at the first public mention of the possibility, his antagonism toward such uses might be lessened if he were assured the new uses were kept in quasi-highway programs.

What Mackie really appears to fear most is that the Legislature will do exactly what the new Constitution gives it the power to do. That is to spend highway funds for all highway purposes "as defined by law."

The list of state government operations which could be construed as "highway purposes" is longer than most would expect. It would certainly be unfortunate if the legislators, many of whom resent the present financial independence of the Highway Department, were to stage a wholesale raid on the funds which would deter the long-range construction plans.

WARN YOUR CHILDREN

The warm weather months bring forth an increase in the incidence of child molestings. But it needn't be so if youngsters are properly advised.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Lynn M. Bartlett has asked teachers to provide a special aid to law enforcement officials before Michigan's children begin the summer vacation, when they spend more time playing outside.

"Teacher's cautioning words can sometimes exert more influence on impressing the children than if the warning comes from another source," said Bartlett.

The proper words of caution will also reach all children if given in the classroom. This was partly what prompted Bartlett to call on the teachers.

"Children should be cautioned fully against accepting gifts or rides in cars from strangers; against going for walks with people they do not know; and against playing alone or in deserted areas where responsible adult observation is not possible," he said.

Warnings to children about making friends with strangers, whether given by parents or teachers, should also encourage them to report "any unusual attempts that strangers make to become acquainted with them," he said.

BOOK WORMS

Library facilities at state parks and recreation areas will be greatly expanded this year, but the camping facilities at public fishing sites will be reduced, according to Conservation officials.

State Librarian Genevieve M. Casey will be circulating more than 9,000 books for use this summer at 47 state parks and recreation areas. This is the largest number of areas to offer the library service since the program began 15 years ago.

An average of 200 books will be available in the various park libraries, located in the manager's office. New parks adding the service this year are Muskegon in Luce County, Algonac in St. Clair County, and Port Crescent in Huron County.
